Heads Up

Dear parents

We have continued our work on Relationships Education this week through the use of our No Outsiders programme. Class 1 and 2 have both been looking at books which deal with refugees, (My Name is not Refugee and The Boy at the Back of the Class) and reception have enjoyed the story Blue Chameleon which celebrates all the different colours things can be as a way of accepting and celebrating diversity.

We have also participated in The Big Ask this week and contributed to the biggest survey about children's views ever. Parents can also contribute on this link <https://www.childrenscommissioner.gov.uk/thebigask/> before the end of the day today. The project came with teaching resources which we have used with the children to discuss issues such as gender stereotyping, mental health and what makes a healthy and unhealthy relationship. The children have embraced it all, as usual, and you can be proud of their attitudes and achievements; we certainly are.

After half term, we have six weeks of learning to do before the long summer break. We will be assessing the children to gauge their progress and give us a baseline from which to plan for the autumn term. One of the great advantages of such a small school is that all staff know exactly what the children can do and where their starting points in September should be. We will also be enjoying as many outdoor lessons as possible including archery with Moorland Adventure and sports day, which I hope you have in your diaries – Thursday 24th June.

I hope that you enjoy the promised sunshine over the bank holiday weekend and have a fantastic week off.

Kind regards

Joanne Bromley
