Heads Up

Dear parents

Welcome back to school, lovely to see everyone on Tuesday and to spend the week with the children.

We enjoyed working on No Outsiders this week with class one reading Max the Champion by Sean Stockdale and Alexandra Strick which led to some excellent discussions on inclusion and teamwork. Class two have used This is Our House by Michael Rosen to focus on discrimination, whilst class three read The Whisperer by Nick Butterworth to look at acceptance and diversity. We also attended church for worship where some children received a bible from the St Christopher's community. Thank you to all those children who brought in their holiday homework. We looked at and appreciated everyone's work and the PowerPoints which class three children made are now on the Our Church page of the website (because they all focused on compassion and respect).

This morning saw the start of class three's journey to playing with the Hallé orchestra on 23rd June. They were all issued with a clarinet and will be bringing them home, once parents have signed and returned the agreement to look after the instruments. Because the children will be doing music instead of English on a Friday, we have factored in an extra English and reading session on a Tuesday afternoon and included writing in their Friday morning RE lessons. Brace yourselves for next Friday, when I hope that they will be bringing their instruments home to practice.

We drew the PTA Easter Trail Raffle today and winners included Charlie, Finn, Luke, Johnny, Olivia and Sofia in addition to a couple of people from outside the school community. Thanks to the PTA for arranging and for the various donations of prizes.

Don't forget to read every day with your child, it will help them to achieve in all other areas of school life.

I hope that you enjoy your weekend.

'Be kind and compassionate to one another, forgiving each other, just as in Christ, God forgave you'
